Hi,
My name is Carmen Goldberg. I am a professional image internet marketing coach, photographer, videographer and web designer. I studied Magazine Graphic Design and Advertising at Parson's School of Design in New York. I have 10 years experience on internet web design, social media marketing, podcasting and video casting.

My job is to help performers, authors and professionals get their messages out to their internet audience, through proper marketing, utilizing website presentation, social networking tools and professionally produced podcasts and video interviews. Carmen Goldberg Media can do all of this for you.

A full portfolio of podcasts is listed at <http://www.carmengoldbergmedia.com/InternetImageMarketing.html>.

If you are an actor, singer, songwriter, new author and don't know how to begin to market yourself, let me help you.

Anyone who has a good product to sell, should have their own professional website, have articles written about them and have themselves professionally filmed on video or interviewed in a podcast, by one of the networks.

It is sad to say that the top networks are not knocking on the doors of new talent, begging to interview them on national television. Enter Carmen Goldberg Media (<http://www.carmengoldbergmedia.com>).

Carmen Goldberg of Carmen Goldberg Media will take care of your professional internet marketing needs.

My package is an affordable package and some video services charge my price just to produce the video alone. My package includes the following services, which will be expedited within a 7 week time period and will be followed-through with a systematic approach.

Services

What the Carmen Goldberg Media Image Marketing Package Includes:

1. Set up a professional photography shoot on location at your home, office or at professional studio of my designation in New York, where I will take your portrait in 3 wardrobe changes. These professional photos will be used for publicity purposes for promoting your future e-book and will be used on the professional website that CGM builds for you, and any blogs at the top three social networks - MySpace, Facebook and YouTube.
2. I will layout your short manuscript in brochure e-book format.
3. Design your individual professional 4 page website with a PayPal link, which will serve as your home base, where you can sell your e-book(s).
4. I will produce and script a ten minute VIP style podcast interview or video interview featuring you, discussing your work and your e-book, to be posted on YouTube, on your professional website and the top three social networks.
5. I will write a press style article to be featured on your website discussing you, your work or e-book and any limited number of blogs that you may have.
6. I will design a cover page and logo for e-books and magazines and set up the layout of your e-book for selling online on your website or social networks.
7. I will also post the press article that I write with your feedback, at the New York Pod Café Magazine, which will be linked to your site. The podcasts and videos will also be posted to YouTube and be posted on your website as well.
8. I will set up professional fan pages with your professional photos on the top three social networks and will link them all so that you can post status line messages to all three networks from one central location. Once I set up the fan pages you can take over all of your sites and continue to invite more friends, associates and potential clients to those network pages, since at that point my mission to promote your business at a professional level has been accomplished.
